SATURDAY
OCTOBER 24, 1953

I had my last sitting this morning for the portrait, which I think turned out well although I am afraid it is not large enough for the use I had intended for it in the Paris Embassy.

We went at noon to see Raoul and Madame Boyer. He looked [redacted] badly, [redacted] He has now been in bed for almost a year and is suffering from anemia. Nevertheless, he is in good spirits but I was [redacted] sad to see him in this distressing condition. Madame Boyer is greatly overworked in the wine shop and appears desperately tired.

We lunched with the children and went down to Versailles to spend the night.
